A seasonal market can make holiday shopping more local—and give residents a reason to explore a part of town they might otherwise pass by. The Waxahachie CVB lists its Holiday Farmers Market for Saturdays from Nov. 7 through Dec. 19, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m., at 701 Howard Road.

The event listing describes indoor and outdoor vendors offering produce, baked goods, local honey, handcrafted goods and other artisan items. It does not name participating vendors or establish that every item is made in Waxahachie, so shoppers looking for a particular product or hoping to buy directly from a local maker should check with the organizer for current vendor details.

The market's location may help make a visit part of a broader outing. According to the CVB, the site connects to the Waxahachie Creek Hike & Bike Trail, sits beside Wags-A-Hachie Dog Park and is less than a mile from historic downtown. That gives visitors nearby options for a walk or another stop, though the listing does not provide details about parking or dog access at the market itself.

For now, the CVB's calendar specifically lists the market on Nov. 7, 14, 21 and 28. Its event page gives the broader Saturday schedule through Dec. 19. Because dates and arrangements can change, check the official listing before leaving, especially if planning a trip later in the season.

The available listing does not specify admission costs, payment methods or parking arrangements. Those are useful details to confirm in advance, along with whether a preferred vendor or item will be there. The market is scheduled for four hours each Saturday, but individual vendors may have their own offerings and availability.

For neighbors comparing seasonal shopping options, the event provides a single place to browse a mix of food and handmade goods while supporting the vendors who take part. The most reliable next step is to consult the Waxahachie CVB's event page and current calendar for updates.
